

Harris Greenberg

CIO, Chief Information Officer

Harris Greenberg joined Kellstrom Defense as the Chief Information Office (CIO) in 2015. He is responsible for overseeing all aspects of information and technology, information security, data, and analytics across the global reach of the company. He supports the growth of the business by partnering with the company's business units on IT and analytics related revenue generating programs.

Mr. Greenberg has over twenty-five years of experience managing IT and business teams across both aerospace and defense and commercial industries. He is an accomplished leader with expertise in Business Systems, Infrastructure, Cyber Security, and Project Management, while driving best practices, driving process improvements, and growing and stretching employee productivity.

Previously engaged as the IT Director for a series of companies including AeroVironment, Parsons, and L-3 Communications, he was responsible for developing IT roadmaps, setting IT short-term and long-term directions, managing IT budgets and staff, and managing major projects while driving automation and developing employee resources.

Mr. Greenberg spent sixteen years at The Walt Disney Company rising from a systems programmer to the Director of Business Systems by continuously taking on new challenges.

He holds a B.A. with an emphasis in Information Systems from San Diego State University and completed the SIM RLF leadership program.
