

Kevin Cofer

Program Director, Total System Support Responsibility (TSSR)

Mr. Cofer is currently engaged at Kellstrom Defense in the role of Total System Support Responsibility (TSSR) Program Director, and is the leader for the Contractor Logistics Support (CLS) segment. He is responsible for overseeing all aspects of the statement of work for a Fortune 500 customer that includes supply chain management, quality assurance, quality control, material security, and purchasing/repair management, utilizing his nearly twenty years of aerospace experience.

Prior to that, he held the role of Purchasing & Repair Manager for Kellstrom Defense Aerospace in the Joint STARS program. Kevin insured that the segment supply chain processed repair and purchase orders within contractual requirements, while maintaining high customer satisfaction ratings. He held previous roles at AAR Defense Systems as Repair & Purchasing Coordinator, creating new processes to increase profitability and improve customer auditing results.

Kevin began his career with Raytheon E-Systems in customer service and supply chain management, tasked with increasing responsibility in the aerospace industry. He then took a position with Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC) as a Material Planner, forecasting inventory backlog and setting reorder point levels to meet contractual metrics for the Industrial Prime Vendor contract located at Robins AFB, GA.

He holds a B.S. degree in Business Administration from Middle Georgia State University and is currently pursuing an MBA in Supply Chain Management from the J. Whitney Bunting College of Business at Georgia College & State University.
